

GUIDELINES FOR SPECIAL CONSIDERATION APPLICATION

Eligibility

1. A student may apply for Special Consideration if his/her attendance or performance in an assessment/examination has been affected by significant reasons, such as:

Medical Grounds

- Serious illness, medical or mental health condition, e.g., condition or operation resulting in hospitalisation, serious injury, severe asthma, high fever, severe anxiety or depression.

Non-Medical Grounds

- Serious trauma resulting from serious incident, e.g., victim of crime, accident or disaster (e.g. fire).
- Attending to immediate family member's severe medical or mental health condition.
- Bereavement in the immediate family, e.g., loss of a parent, grandparent, sibling, spouse or child.
- Representing Singapore or NUS in endorsed/recognised international competitions.

Ailments that do not adversely affect a student's performance, e.g., slight cold, sore throat or headache, normally do not constitute sufficient reason for Special Consideration. Additionally, misreading of the examination timetable is not a valid reason for Special Consideration.

2. All Special Consideration applications for examinations will be reviewed by the relevant Faculty's Board of Examiners (BOE). If approved, one of the following outcomes may apply:
 - Granting of an Incomplete (IC) grade
 - Option to retain the grade attained or receive an IC grade
 - Retention of the original grade attained

An IC grade does not affect the Grade Point Average (GPA), but no units are earned for the course. Students who receive an IC grade may need to retake the same or another course in subsequent semesters to fulfil their programme requirements, which may extend their candidature of study.

Make-up or alternative examinations are generally not granted, except in extraordinary circumstances.

3. Submitting a Special Consideration application does not guarantee that an Incomplete (IC) grade will be granted. The Board of Examiners' decision on the reasons to be taken into consideration shall be final.

Application Period and Process

4. The application periods for Special Consideration are generally as follows:

Semester	Application Start and End Date
Mini Semester 1A and 2A	From 10am of the Friday before the start of the Reading Week to 6pm of the second Tuesday after the last day of the Examination Week.

Application on Medical Grounds

9. If you are applying for Special Consideration on medical grounds, you should:

If Consulting	Steps
University Health Centre (UHC) Doctor	(i) First submit an online Special Consideration application via EduRec (refer to paragraph 5), (ii) Then go to UHC to consult a doctor, and inform UHC upon arrival that you are consulting a doctor for the purpose of supporting a Special Consideration application. After your consultation, UHC will update your application before forwarding it to your Home Faculty.
Non-UHC External Doctor	(i) Before going to the external doctor, download and print out the hardcopy Special Consideration Form and bring it along with you to the doctor, (ii) Consult the external doctor, and provide the hardcopy Special Consideration Form to the doctor for him/her to indicate his/her comments in the form*, (iii) Then submit an online Special Consideration application via EduRec, attaching the Medical Certificate and the completed Special Consideration Form as supporting documents when submitting your application (refer to paragraph 5). * Please ensure that your doctor completes Part 3 of the Form before you submit it online. Only medical practitioners registered with the Singapore Medical Council (SMC) can complete Part 3 of the Form. Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) practitioners are not registered with the SMC. NOTE: Students must consult a doctor in person to complete the Special Consideration Form. Telemedicine consultations are not accepted.

10. Students applying for Special Consideration on medical grounds may need to be certified fit by UHC to resume studies in the following semester. Such students will be notified via email to do so.

Application on Non-Medical Grounds

11. If you are applying for Special Consideration on non-medical grounds, please attach the relevant supporting documents when submitting your application (refer to paragraph 5).
